

Spare Labs Dev Challenge Questions:

1. What new technologies did you learn to complete this challenge?

This was my first time using react and any of the related modules such as redux, as well as mapbox and superagent. I found that react is extremely elegant to program with, and I thoroughly enjoyed learning how to use it for this web application.

2. Was there anything you found specifically challenging or time consuming?

Yes, as previously mentioned, as I had not used React before, I had to read and watch many online tutorials to better provide myself with a robust foundation upon which I could build upon when actually designing this web application. Indeed, the most challenging part was wrapping my head around the react-redux paradigm, as it was very different from any other web technology I had used, such as the Angular JS web framework.